Netscape is not struggling because Internet Explorer is bundled with the Windows OS. Netscape is struggling because they suck. You don't sue your neighbor because he hired a better architect than you and built a better house. The government needs to start levying some heavy fines on these companies that want to sue other companies for "building a better mouse trap". AOL has 32 million subscribers and they have merged with Time Warner Cable, they are closer to being a Monopoly than Microsoft ever thought of being.
